

Day 2:

Today firstly we went to the Marie Curie school. It was smaller than our school, but impressive. They even have a courtroom, to learn how judicial processes are in real life and how to deal with them.

After that the Polish people presented us the rules of Volleyball and ice skating.

Later we got a tour through the city of Stary Sacz, the city where the school was located. It was pretty interesting, because we saw a lot of churches and libraries today. Also there was a really big graveyard, but imagine it more dismal than in Germany. It was grave after grave, really squeezed. All in all we were stunned about the cultural differences between Poland and Germany.

Shortly before the tour ended, we had lunch in a restaurant.

As we were back at school, we made a little volleyball match and afterwards every nation presented a kind of sport.

Our last action in school for the day was a little task about imagining an own, new sport on ice.

Now in the evening we are sitting together with some Slovaks and getting to know each other.
