

Day 7

Today we started our travel back home. We hoped everything would be as it was planned, but it was not. At half past 5 the polish teacher came and has taken us off. She had to drive really carefully because of the snow on the streets. Our first train came on time, but than he stopped often for really long times. The Conductor told us in polish that we have to leaf the train, so we took a bus to Tarnow. There we waited and planned a new way to get home, because we missed our next train. We had to change the train often and waited on the train stations. Finally we were in Germany. At half past 1, in the night, already the next day we arrived in Crossen. From there we all went home by different cars. It was a long travel but we are really happy to be finally home.
